

The Legacy Workshop™

September 22-23, 2008

2 days — 9:00 am to 6:00 pm daily • Candlewood Suites • 10535 El Diente court • Denver, 80112

*“Because of this workshop, we treat each other and ourselves in a much healthier way and it has helped us establish a happier, more content home. When we signed up for this workshop, our children commented that they didn't think we needed to change anything. Now they realize exactly where we needed to change and have thrived in these changes. What a difference it has made in their lives. This workshop was a true blessing to our family. “ Kim. C - Atlanta

Why Pay Attention to Legacy?”

Parents traditionally do their best to “learn on the job”, but end up repeating losing strategies they learned from their own families. The Legacy Workshop has been created to help parents develop a healthy home life and to manage themselves more effectively as they “manage” their children. In this workshop, you will learn how to develop what Terry Real calls your “healthy core” and how to understand and use your emotional legacy to enhance your happiness and your children’s well-being. This two day workshop will be taught by Terry and RLI faculty.

Who Should Attend?

Parents of all ages. (Single, married or in relationship – all are welcome.)

What Will I Learn?

The Legacy Workshop™ is designed to provide you with an intellectual understanding and a deep emotional experience of:

- ▷ The emotional and relational legacy that was handed to you as a child in your family growing up,
- ▷ The positive and negative aspects of that legacy and the ways in which you may be unconsciously passing on negative aspects of the legacy to your children, and
- ▷ How to work with yourself and co-parent to consciously pass on positive aspects of your legacy and stop the transmission of negative aspects of that legacy sparing your children and transforming the generations to follow.
